

70th Anniversary of Faculty of Science
The University of Hong Kong
Congratulatory Message

May I extend my warmest congratulations to the Faculty of Science of The University of Hong Kong on its 70th Anniversary.

This happy occasion marks a grand milestone for the Faculty as we witness its seventy years of growth and robust development. We celebrate its steadfast commitments and relentless efforts in the pursuit of knowledge and innovations, and the nurture of talents in the domains of science which have earned it international esteem and recognition. We celebrate the success of our graduates who have flourished to become distinguished leaders in the educational, industrial and commercial fields, making significant contributions to our society and serving as role models for our younger generation.

The occasion has brought back fond memories of the faces of our classmates and old friends and our happy days in the Faculty. We are grateful to the University and the Faculty, and its dedicated academic staff, for the invaluable learning opportunities offered to us, and we have built a life long bonding with the Faculty that we deeply cherish.

This is indeed an occasion which calls for celebration, in honour of the Faculty's seventy years' excellence. As a proud alumni member of this prestigious Faculty, I warmly look forward to the series of exciting celebrative anniversary events. I invite all my fellow alumni to join me in wishing the Faculty of Science the very best and continued success in the years to come.
