Message Faculty of Science 70th Anniversary

The past seven decades have brought forth some of the most astounding advances in science the world has ever seen. Colleagues and students in the Faculty of Science have borne witness to these developments. Certainly, there are Faculty members who have been responsible for some of these pioneering advances, and their accomplishments have brought recognition and respect to the University. Its graduates too, armed with the disciplined and analytical minds that come with scientific training, have brought their knowledge and leadership to many key positions throughout Hong Kong society.

So on behalf of the University, I am delighted to congratulate the members of the Faculty of Science, past and present, on the occasion of the Faculty's 70th anniversary. We salute you for your dedication to both your discipline and the community throughout these ever changing times. May this milestone of achievement mark the beginning of further growth and even greater success for the Faculty.

Professor Lap-Chee Tsui
Vice-Chancellor
