On this auspicious occasion of the 70th Anniversary of the founding of the Faculty of Science of The University of Hong Kong, I would like to offer my heartiest congratulations to all its members, past and present.

Since its establishment in 1939, the Faculty of Science has come a long way in terms of physical growth as well as the number and quality of graduates it nurtured. Many of these graduates, apart from making significant contributions to the scientific world, became distinguished community leaders in Hong Kong and other parts of the world.

I am most honoured to have the fortune of associating with the Faculty of Science for six years, being an undergraduate and postgraduate student in the years 1955 – 1961. In the ensuing years, I maintained occasional contacts with the Faculty, particularly the Chemistry Department. It is pleasing to witness the Faculty of Science moving from strength to strength.

May I wish the Faculty every success in the next seventy years.
